We are constantly in communication with others to do our work, meet our needs, and resolve problems. The challenge of communicating without getting upset or upsetting others leads some people to opt out of the conversation all together. Unfortunately, this approach does not serve us. The Artful Conversation helps faculty learn how to communicate in ways that help to build relationships. During this interactive webinar, faculty will learn how to adapt their communication style to work more effectively with others.

Training provided by the National Conflict Resolution Center.
